V. RESEARCH FOCUS AND AREA OF SPECIALISATION

Francophone African Literature & Teaching of French as a Foreign Language

The peculiar status, mission and vision of the Nigeria French Language Village (NFLV) have in no little way fashioned our research orientation, thus influencing our publications from inception to date. In these publications, are found, on one part thoughts exposing the usefulness of French Language, the benefits of its effective teaching to Anglophones in general and to Nigerians in particular. On the other part, are also found articles discussing not only the importance and knowledge of African literary creative works in French, but also stressing on the impact of francophone culture on the Anglophone world via French language acquisition. Against the background of this orientation which is dictated by the need to fit into the vision and mission of the Nigeria French Language Village, our research orientation aims at more knowledge acquisition, appreciation and contribution to knowledge in the area of Francophone African Literature and the teaching of French as a foreign Language within the framework of French Studies.

Our publications view literary works from the perspective of their social functions. They expose under laid issues which are not easily detected by uncritical minds. Peculiar topical issues are presented and discussed as changing agents in the context of committed literary works. Masterpieces of Iconic literary writers such as Sembène Ousmane, Ahmadou Kourouma and Calixte Beyala are explained afresh and reinterpreted for better understanding. French language is however rediscovered for learning at a higher level and for language analysts. The French language is also rediscovered through thematic expository writing for more understanding of the African political degenerateness on one part and its revival on the other part. Papers on pedagogy focus on the teaching of French language, especially in Nigeria and the Anglophone World in general.

These publications make bold suggestions on the need for teachers to review their attitude vis à vis the learners for a better productivity. The papers advocate for adoption and introduction of available technological gadgets into teaching for a less stressful input and a better output. 9 out of the 25 publications presented are published offshore and are widely cited.
